

PRESS RELEASE

Novanet Communications and Exalt Communications Announce a National Strategic Partner Reseller Agreement

June 2012

Exalt and Novanet announced Novanet Communications Limited has become a Strategic Partner for Exalt Communications in Canada. Under this agreement, Novanet will become the first Strategic Partner for Exalt's product line in Canada, able to provide their clients with a wide variety of high speed Point-to-Point licenced and non-licenced Ethernet and TDM back-haul solutions.

Novanet Communications is well respected in the industry and has become the trusted distributor of networking solutions to many clients in various sectors. Commenting on the opportunity for partnership with Exalt, Joe Uyede, President and CEO of Novanet Communications, said, "Exalt delivers systems that provide the highest level of functionality at the lowest total cost of ownership. The addition of the Exalt product line is complimentary to the solutions already being provided to Novanet customers. We are extremely positive about the relationship and see great potential due to our extensive contacts throughout Canada."

About Exalt Communications

Exalt Communications provides next-generation microwave backhaul systems to mobile operators, service providers, government agencies, and enterprises worldwide. Exalt systems are designed to solve the network bottlenecks associated with the growing demand for IP-based voice, data, and video applications and the resulting migration from TDM to IP-based networks. With a flexible architecture and universal product platform covering multiple market segments, Exalt provides a full range of microwave backhaul systems that meet the demand for cost-effective and flexible alternatives to fibre and leased lines.
